It takes a forgiving nature to return to the same dentist year after year.

There doesn't seem to be any closed season for pie hunting in Missouri. About 2,000 persons have applied to Governor Gardner for jobs under the new Workmen's Compensation Act.

THE BENT KNEE

Nowadays persons don't think over much of prayer; they think they are too busy to pray, and, anyway, things come to them so easily that they take the source for granted. Like the child that forgets to thank his mother, persons go on using God's bounty neglectful of gratitude. And the loss is theirs, for prayer gives that fresh touch with God which better than anything else tends to keep the vision clear, the heart warm and the soul pure. Jesus was never too busy to pray; that is why He never lost His close personal touch with the needs of men.

Spend a minute or two this evening in quiet introspection and notice the effect.

Love is nourished too much in the moonlight to suit the eugenicists; they are for more sunlight on such subjects.

COLUMBIA'S GREATEST NEED

Columbia needs most an adequate sewerage system. The present system does not reach all parts of the city. This tends to retard growth. The plans recently presented to the City Council outline a system of sewerage which will be modern and adequate in every respect. This means that the health of the city will be better guarded.

The City Council may soon order a bond election to vote $135,000 for this great need. When Mr. Any Citizen casts his vote it behooves him to bear in mind the parts of Columbia which are not reached by the sewerage system; and also the fact that disposal plants are more sanitary than surrounding creeks.

Columbia's need of an adequate system is imperative.

A good position for airy, theoretical men, who have difficulty in making a success in the cold world of hard fact, is that of airplane salesmen. They could still deal in the clouds and be paid enough to support their families.

THE MEAT PACKERS' MONOPOLY

The Federal Trade Commission's report to the President regarding its investigation into the business of the Big Five Chicago meat packers reveals one of the largest trade monopolies in the history of the country. Not only do these five men practically control the meat output of the United States, but through their hold on the hide market they can regulate the price of shoes and other leather goods. While their percentage of profit on meat handling is small, the public does not know what are their returns from their dealings in eggs, poultry, cheese, breakfast foods, chicken feed, fruit, canned vegetables, coal, fence posts, builders' hardware, binding twine, lumber, cement, lime, rice and salmon.

The report of the commission does not indict the packers of abusing their power in the food markets, but it reveals a condition of affairs which it considers a menace to the country, and it is therefore in favor of legislation to regulate the activities of the Chicago packers.

Big business is not bad just because it is big business, but it is hardly wise to have the bulk of the food supply of the Nation under the absolute control of a few men without any laws to dominate or regulate their conduct.

Municipal reactions to war-time prohibition differ widely. St. Louis reports its dispensary with an empty inebriate ward for the first time in its existence. Chicago has a 30 per cent increase in delinquent tremens cases.

LET REED BE HEARD

Senator Reed spoke at Birmingham, Ala., this week against the League of Nations. Opposition developed among the League supporters, and violence was threatened against the Missouri Senator. An opposition meeting was organized at Woodrow Wilson Park, a few blocks away. A squad of policemen was assigned Senator Reed to see that he suffered no bodily harm.

Senator Reed should be allowed to speak unmolested. At present he is one of Missouri's two representatives in the highest legislative chamber of the United States. Sister states of Missouri should pay her sufficient respect to listen to her representative without threats of violence. One can at least be a gentleman to a guest in his own house.

Senator Reed is an eloquent speaker. Whether his logic appeals to the people of his state is another question that can only be settled at the next election. We must at least give him credit for courage.

He should be listened to respectfully. He voices the opinion of the opposition to the plan for a League of Nations. The League is no one-sided question, as has been evidenced by the new party alliances and third-term efforts that have been threatened.

Reed is Missouri's senator. Missouri made him, and Missouri will unmake him if conditions warrant. Citizens of other states cannot do this by their insults. If there is any reprimanding or chastising to be done, it will be done right here in the family by the people of Missouri.

The Constitution of the United States guarantees among other things freedom of speech. Surely this right shall not be abridged in the case of a United States senator.

Senator Reed is not President of the United States but he is a member of the body which must ratify the covenant before it becomes part of our law. If he has something to offer to help show the way, let's all hear him.

Butler's right leg and foot were badly crushed. He was pinioned beneath the end of the water tank on the engine which had turned over in the accident. It is said today that it was necessary to amputate his foot.

E. S. South of Moberly, conductor on the freight, and three men who were riding on the engine were also slightly injured.

Several carloads of hogs were killed in the accident. Both engines were badly damaged and several freight cars were overturned.

The cause of the accident was due to the airbrakes on the freight train failing to work.

Mr. S. F. Conley, Prest.,
Boone National S. & L. Assn.,
Columbia, Mo.

Dear Sir:

I have just completed an examination of the condition of the Boone National S. & L. Assn. for the period ending June 30, 1919.

All real estate loans are in first class condition, abstracts of title, deeds of trust, insurance policies and certificates of stock to secure each loan are on file. All stock loans are in good shape, also prepaid stock certificates are properly registered. Cash on hand and in bank fully accounted for.

The assets of the association since the date of the last examination (June 30, 1918) show an increase of more than $12,000.00 which in view of the condition brought about by the war, ought to be very gratifying to the management. All the records, books and files of the association are well and neatly kept and the Secretary, Mr. W. S. St. Clair is in every way competent and takes an intensely active interest in the affairs of the association, and I predict that with the economical management aided by Mr. St. Clair's active interest, your association will become one of the leading associations in the state. With best wishes for your continued success and prosperity, I am

Yours very truly,

John A. Lee
